PRICELESS MSS GOES TO STATES

New York Banker Purchases Famous Ebony Box of Boswell's Papers—

LETTERS INCLUDE MARRIAGE PROPOSAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Colonel Ralph H. Isham, New York banker and a leading collector of books and manuscripts relating to Dr. Samuel Johnson and his biographer, James Boswell, has returned from Europe with what he believes is the finest literary treasure ever unearthed. It consists of scores of manuscript letters, diaries and the like written by and to Boswell, almost none of which has ever been published or referred to, and which, in many gaps in the world's knowledge of Boswell and the great literary and political minds of his time with whom he associated. These manuscripts constituted the contents of the famous "ebony box," to which Boswell referred in his will. They had dropped so completely from sight that until recently they were world had come to believe that they had been destroyed.

They had been rescued, however, from Auchinleck Castle in Scotland, the one time estate of Johnson's biographer, by Boswell's great-grandson, Lord Talbot de Malahide, and Lady de Malahide, and taken to their present home in Ireland. Some of the manuscripts brought here apparently had been thrown about in an old lumber room in the Boswell family's ancestral home in Scotland. Among the manuscripts so treated was that of the book which brought him the greatest fame, his "Life of Johnson." Water from a leaky ceiling had fallen on it and the outer pages of the manuscript had crumbled to powder as they dried out later.

Only thirty pages could be saved at all, and these Colonel Isham brought back repaired by the application of glue by a skilful London bookbinder. The manuscripts in the ebony box, however, are in perfect condition, though somewhat yellowed by the years. They show Boswell, son of an aristocratic Scottish family, who chose to travel about with the great and record their actions and sayings, not only in his role of a "man of elegant curiosity," but in his most intimate and unguarded moments as a lover, a father and a friend.

MOST DELICIOUS ITEM

In his day, Boswell had the reputation of being a bit of a philanderer. One of the most delicious items in the collection is his own naive account of an evening spent calling on Mrs. Rudd, who was famous for her charm. He began this eight-page epic as soon as he returned from Mrs. Rudd's house for at the top he inscribed "London, between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning of April 23, 1776." He did not complete it until the morning of the second day, for he notes at the end of the first half that he had decided to go to bed. At top of this manuscript he has his self-explanatory notation: "To my wife, but not sent."

In it he tells of his resolve to call on the famous Mrs. Rudd, of the pretense he found, and finally of his meeting with her. Boswell, who was what would be known on Broadway as a fast worker, and their highly cultivated conversation had not proceeded long before Boswell had brought the subject around to love. "You have the reputation of being a sorcerer," he told her. "When she denied this with pretty modesty he leaped to his feet and assured her he knew it was true because she had enchanted him. He 'seized her slyly' and, in his own point and a moment later found occasion to kiss it—'Experimentally,' he adds, and so on through the evening. When she spoke of never hoping for happiness, Boswell gave tranquility as the ideal of life which she finally had set for herself he recommended love as the path to happiness. When he noticed that the light from the candles was hurting her eyes he removed them with a gesture. Then, with a greater gesture he cried that he could not have her happiness so obscured and put a candle back where it would illuminate her face. His whole account is done in the broad pen strokes of a man writing ardently and swiftly.

Boswell was more than anything else a reporter—the greatest who ever lived according to Col. Isham, who once was a reporter himself. He was the inventor of the interview, and one of the finest letters in the ebony box collection was to the Rev. William Hay, Boswell's long friend, telling of his journey to the Chateau de Ferney to see Voltaire and the wonderful evening of conversation he had with the great French thinker.

"Was not this a remarkable scene?" he asks his friend, "wasn't this interview alone worth a trip from Scotland to Ferney?" Boswell himself knew his misadventure to Temple was a remarkable one, for at the end he wrote, "Temple, this is a noble letter."

There are many letters written to Temple in the collection purchased by Colonel Isham and there are also many from Temple. They show up a curiosity which Boswell long have felt as to the actual feelings of the clergyman for Boswell. They reveal that Temple loved Boswell for his human qualities, though at times he chuckled at Boswell's absurdities.

"Boswell, my friend," Temple wrote him, "you have no idea what your correspondence has meant to me. It has buoyed me up in my moments of despondency. Let it never cease."

BOSWELL'S LOVE LETTERS

Another notable group in the collection consists of Boswell's love letters to Isabella de Zuylen, whom he met at Utrecht and whom he addressed as "Zelide."

There is more than a score of love letters to his "Peggie"—Margaret Montgomerie, whom he married.

There is Boswell's letter proposing marriage and asking her to study in her own room and there is her reply accepting his proposal. Both letters are folded into narrow pack-

Titled Farmers Till Canadian Prairies

WESTERN Canada is becoming very popular with lords and ladies of high rank. From England, from France, from Denmark and from Hungary—to say nothing of Russian nobles, they are drifting to the Prairies of Alberta and Saskatchewan to prosper on farms or ranches.

Everyone knows, of course, that the Prince of Wales has a large ranch in Alberta, stocked with thoroughbred cattle and sheep. But everyone does not know that along the shores of the Saskatchewan River, at Port Saskatchewan, a twelve-room house of graceful architecture and modern appointments has been built on a ranch covering 1,000 acres where Lord and Lady Rodney, with their family, have decided to spend the rest of their lives, with occasional trips, of course, back to England to visit their friends and relatives. Before undertaking to run the ranch, however,

Lord Rodney, who is both a "hired out" as farm hands on a neighboring ranch until they felt that they knew something of conditions which homesteaders on the Prairies are obliged to meet. Now they are not only successfully running their own large farm, but friends in the nobility of England have sent out their promising sons to train under Lord Rodney before they, too, buy their own ranches. Lord Rodney, son of the Duke of Manchester, is a pupil on Lord Rodney's ranch. The son of Lady Parquhar, of London, England, is another, Lady Rodney's little son, John, although only eight years of age, helps his father round the farm and bids fair to being an experienced farmer before he is out of his teens.

One of France's wealthiest noblemen, the handsome Duc de Nemours, who attended the annual ride of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies this Summer, was so fascinated with the country round Banff and the Yoho Valley that he is reported to have bought some property and intends to return again next Summer. Prince Eric, of Denmark, whose marriage to one of Canada's best-known society girls was an event much heralded, has expressed his intention of following the example of the Prince of Wales.

Florida leads the United States in the use of manufactured ice, consuming 2,314 pounds per capita annually, according to findings of a refrigeration survey of the country just completed by the American Ice Company. Eight states have a per capita consumption of more than 1,000 pounds, led by California with 1,419.4, but New York is not among them. The metropolis consumes about one-half a ton per capita for the state.

When allowance is made for urbanization, Florida still leads with a consumption of 6,255.1 pounds, but the state's tremendous lead is considered statistically excessive because no accurate allowance can be made for transient population. The Southern States, that is, all states south of the old Mason and Dixon line, east of the Mississippi and, roughly, all states south of 40 degrees latitude west of the Mississippi, are the leading manufacturers of ice consumers, the American Ice survey shows. Part of the high southern consumption is accounted for by the use of ice in shipments of perishable produce.

SIX SQUARE MILES OF CITY CRUMPLED BY TERRIFIC WIND

DAMAGE in the tri-cities was estimated at several hundred thousands. The city of Rudy, Ark., Sept. 29.—Most of the village of Rudy, a prosperous fruit shipping centre nestling in a pocket surrounded by the Boston Mountains, lay twisted and torn tonight, attesting to the fury of a tornado that dipped down upon it today, smashing everything in its path and injuring ten persons, one probably fatally.

Of the thirty-five homes and business houses that clustered Rudy's 150 residents, only the Prisco Railroad depot, five stores and a half dozen dwellings remained intact. Among the structures demolished was the Missionary Baptist Church. Fourteen homes were levelled, while a barn and blacksmith shop were scattered over a wide area.

Mrs. Garvin Graham and her baby were injured when their home was toppled, and it was feared the infant was hurt badly. The other injured were expected to recover.

RHEUMATISM TO BE FOUGHT

Following the many rainy days in England during the Summer, Britain has announced a war against rheumatism. The Minister of Health of Great Britain will lead the campaign, and the British Red Cross and the International Society of Medical Hydrology are co-operating. One of the first steps will be the establishment in London of a clinic for the working-class sufferers.

NEW STOOKER BIG SAVING

LOCAL INVENTOR MEETS WITH SUCCESS IN OPERATION OF MACHINE ON PRAIRIES

Market for Caulfield Stooker Looks Bright—Saves Two Dollars an Acre in Harvesting Cost

Mr. Norman H. Caulfield, president of the Caulfield Stooker Company Ltd., of Victoria, returned yesterday from the prairies, where he has been watching the operations of the company's new stookers. They have done by these machines has, so far, been entirely satisfactory, and the outlook for the marketing of this machine on the prairies was extremely bright, he stated.

Mr. Caulfield estimates that the operation of this machine will mean a saving of at least two dollars an acre in harvesting cost.

INVENTION PRAISED

The Regina Post, in reporting on the operation of the machine, has the following to say:

"Operating with a perfection that holds promise of doing away with the necessity of importing large numbers of harvesters, the Caulfield stooker, result of seven years of continual experiment, today is being used in the harvesting of a 150-acre field of barley on the James E. Grassick farm, a few miles northeast of Regina. All who have seen it have been praising this labor-saving device, and the work it is doing appears to be quite the equal of good hand stooking."

"Attached to an eight-foot binder drawn by five horses, the stooker is setting up sheaves at the rate of more than twenty acres a day. The binder cuts its way through the standing grain, and in its wake are left, instead of tangled bundles of sheaves that must be stooked by dint of much arduous labor, compact, solid stooks that give every indication of ability to withstand severe weather."

"Already this season, representatives of the experimental departments of many important harvester firms have inspected the stooker, and every one of them, it is declared, has praised the invention most highly. When put upon the market, this device should save perhaps millions of dollars and days upon days of strenuous work for the farmers of Canada."

STARTED SEVEN YEARS AGO

"Seven years ago, Norman H. Caulfield, formerly of Moose Jaw, now of Victoria, B.C., invented and patented what has since come to be known as the Caulfield stooker. A little crude and imperfect at first, the invention has been developed year by year until today Mr. Caulfield and his associates, together with many uninterested parties, believe virtual perfection has been reached."

"Ten models and twelve full-sized workable stookers have been built in the little shop at Victoria and this year, with the machine which is now operating on the Grassick farm, nearly three hundred acres of crop has been successfully stooked. The device has been patented in nine different countries."

"Many important advantages are evident in connection with the stooker. Firstly, of course, there is the great saving of harvest labor. Then there is the fact that the stooks appear to be, if anything, more solid than if set up by hand. Also, the stooker picks up, not sheaves alone, but loose grain which the binder may have failed to tie. The field is left clean and does not require raking, as is so frequently the case when grain is cut and stooked in the ordinary way."

"The device is a simple one, and easily attached to any make of binder. It is its simplicity, in fact, which so greatly commends it, while the work it is doing is practically 100 per cent. perfect. Not the slightest trouble has been encountered on the Grassick farm in several days of work."

Beaver Family Blasted Out of House and Home

JASPER, Alta., Sept. 29.—Even in Jasper National Park, where all the wild animals are freehold tenants and have no tribute to pay, there may sometimes be difficulty about leases. Take for example the colony of beavers which lives in the horseshoe-shaped Pyramid Lake, at the foot of Pyramid Mountain. It has been there for some years and has felt reasonably sure of remaining there and raising generation after generation of young beavers, but unfortunately man has some rights too and when the rights of beavers and men clash it is not hard to say who will be the loser.

This Spring, the humans who dwell in the bungalows at the lake noticed that the water level was rising. At first they put it to the high water of this year, but they soon found that there was another reason. The channel which runs under the Canadian National Railway line became flooded and trouble was traced to the beavers, who had dammed the outlet of the lake to make deep water for themselves. The game guardian liked the beavers but he decided that they had better be more discriminating in their choice of quarters. He ordered the dam blown up.

The beavers were somewhat surprised but beavers are famous for their industry. They fell to work, gnawed trees, barked them over with their tails and dragged them to the dam and began rebuilding. There was another explosion and the water poured through the dam again. Now for the fifth time, dynamite has made a breach in the dam and the beavers are still stubbornly rebuilding.

His plane was forced down in Austria, however, and he has given up the attempt.

Anonymous Rule Of Bureaucracy Mocks Freedom

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Lord Hewart, Lord Chief Justice of England, has aroused some comment by remarks he made in addressing the Law Society at its annual dinner here when he referred to "the restless encroachment of the arrogant pretensions of bureaucracy in our midst."

In his address, his lordship said: "The name of self-government would be a mockery if it became a vast army of anonymous officials hidden from view. That is a proposition upon which I do not intend to hold my tongue so long as I have one to use."

BAY ST. MAN SAYS HUSKY DID GREAT THINGS FOR HIM

Couldn't Hold Food on Stomach, Was Constipated, Hardly Able to Work—Husky Puts Him On His Feet

Fine tributes, such as could only be offered by truly grateful people, are being paid Husky, the great herb preparation, now distributed by the MacFarlane Drug Co. These words of praise can only be appreciated when you talk with the men and women who through its use have been relieved of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel ailments and their accompanying ills, such as headaches, dizzy spells, indigestion, gas and sour stomach, constipation, rheumatic pains, nervousness, unsound sleep or weak, listless feeling.

H. G. ANDREWS

ings. One of the many cases which illustrate the fine work being done by Husky is that of Mr. H. G. Andrews, 1400 Bay Street, who tells of his experience as follows:

"Before I started the Husky treatment I had indigestion in the worst form," said Mr. Andrews. "I couldn't hold food on my stomach. If I did retain anything it caused me pain and didn't seem to digest. Gas would form in my stomach and then the suffering would start. I was also constipated and I am telling you that I was feeling so bad most of the time that I was hardly able to do my work. Some days I felt like I wouldn't last until night. You will realize that I am grateful to Husky when I tell you that this medicine has relieved me of suffering and made me feel so much better that I no longer get that all-gone feeling while at my work. My food is digesting and the constipation is gone completely. I am eating good meals and getting strength from them, thanks to Husky."

Call at MacFarlane Drug Co. Call today at the MacFarlane Drug Co. Husky headquarters, and let the Husky expert explain to you about this preparation, which is helping so many people in Victoria and vicinity. (Adv.)

VIVISECTION IS DISCUSSED
Anti-Vivisection Organization Hears Views Presented by G. Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells

The pro and con of vivisection were presented before a large gathering at the anti-vivisection meeting which was held last night in the auditorium of the Campbell Building. Rev. W. J. Ellison presided. The arguments for and against vivisection were presented in a novel way. The articles written by Mr. George Bernard Shaw, who champions the cause of anti-vivisectionists, and Mr. H. G. Wells, who is a proponent of vivisection, were read. A discussion followed the reading of the articles, in which those present took a keen interest.

Mr. W. H. Stokes read the article written by Mr. Wells. The outstanding feature was the admission that people vivisect for the sake of knowledge and this was justifiable. He believed that the suffering endured in laboratories was infinitesimal compared with pain inflicted on animals in other ways, such as a big pheasant shoot. The opponent of vivisection was regarded as sentimental, and observed that sentimental aims meant loose, sentimental, ineffective work.

Mr. O. J. Boulton read the article of Mr. Shaw. Mr. Shaw regarded the vivisection as a man driven by a will for abstract lucidity and thought that knowledge without conscience would indicate that the experimenter was a fit subject for the lethal chamber. Wrong ways of ascertaining a fact pointed to moral and intellectual imbecility. He spoke of the worse than negative results of years of experiment and the money wasted in pursuit of this knowledge as compared with the remarkable physiological discoveries made under the strictest tenets of honor.

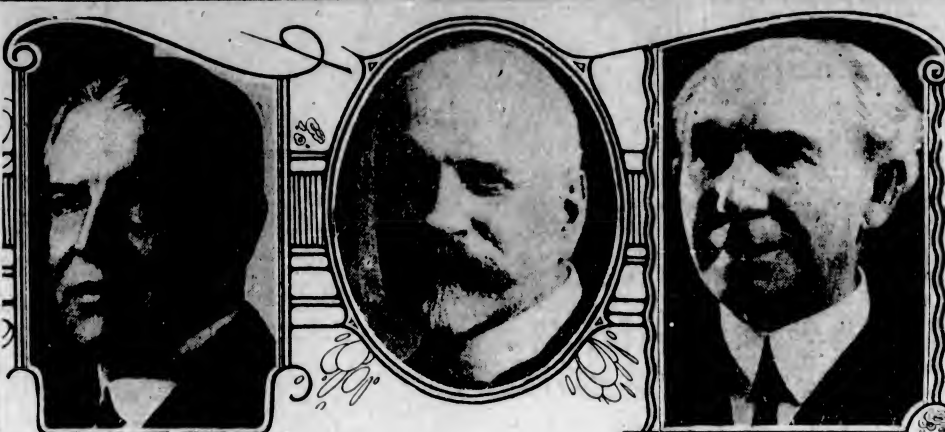

When Queen Victoria wrote to Lister asking him, as a great surgeon, to repudiate the claim of the vivisection to be exempt from humane law and duty, Lister took this as an attack on science, rather than an attack on cruelty. From that time, said G. B. Shaw, the medical student had been taught to advocate and defend vivisection as an essential tenet of scientific faith, but the medical profession did not necessarily practice vivisection. "We cling to vivisection dishonorably, because we are repeatedly assured that it has led to discovery of cures for our diseases and we are ready to snatch at any dirty recipe for immortality rather than face death like ladies and gentlemen." He urged doctors to flee from the wrath to come and indicated that "we were heading for an explosion of popular wrath which will not discriminate between genuine science and obsolete unbelief, such as the General Medical Council in England."

People had no right to seek knowledge by criminal methods and only imbeciles could practice vivisection and glory in it. There was a strange irony in giving men huge sums of money so that they might purchase innumerable mice with it and play with them in their laboratories. Some day Shaw hoped to learn that the St. Thomas Hospital in London was no longer dedicated to the apostle of vivisection.

Miss Gladys Shrapnel rendered violin solos during the evening. She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Olive Campbell.

In Running for Conservative Leadership

OLD OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

Ward Two Conservatives Hold Well Attended Annual Meeting

Ward Two Conservatives rallied strongly to the annual meeting of the ward association last evening, and after quite a spirited contest for the various offices, elected the executive of last year throughout. Capt. M. D. Harbord was re-elected chairman of the ward, his contestant for the office being Mr. A. Gibson; Mr. A. Cave was again elected to the office of secretary over George Miller, who was also nominated for the office, while the delegates to the central executive were named as Messrs. George Penketh, W. Hardy, F. Coley and W. Hurd. The other nominees for the central executive were Messrs. Watson Clark, Gibson, Zeigler, Brockington and Fred McIlroy.

Following the election of the officers, Capt. Harbord made a short speech in which he appealed for united action on the part of all Conservatives of the ward. He anticipated that before the term of office closed of those elected there would be plenty to do in the cause of Conservatism.

Mr. D. B. Plunkett, the president of the central executive, extended his congratulations to the ward for the large meeting.

Mr. Reginald Hayward, M.P.P., referred to the competition for office among the members. It was, he said, indicative of a healthy condition when there was keen rivalry for office. He said that in his opinion it was likely that there would be a general election called in the province before another session was held.

He made reference to the blanket policy for road work that had been brought down by the Government at the last session, and which had been put through by the Government supporters. This policy made it possible to switch the expenditures on roads to a constituency like Nelson when an election was being held there. He gave instances of road work being done which seemed to be largely for the benefit of supporters of the Government.

Before the meeting closed the reports of Major A. Lyons, M.P.P., and Mr. J. H. Hinchliffe, M.P.P., at not being present was expressed. The former was out of the city on business, while Mr. Hinchliffe, it was explained, had been called to the mainland through the serious illness of his wife.

Liberal Meeting

Mr. N. W. Whitaker, Liberal nominee for the Saanich riding, addressed the party supporters at Ward Seven, Saanich, on Wednesday evening. He gave a résumé of the work that had been done by the Liberal Government during its term of office, and dealt with the statements made by Hon. S. F. Tolmie, M.P., criticizing them and presenting the other side of the situation. The meeting was presided over by Mr. A. W. Armp, president. Several other members spoke during the evening, and following the speeches a programme of social and business meetings for the season was arranged.

"The Second Advent"

A much-debated question is to be taken into consideration this evening at The King's Hall, by the Rev. Dr. McGowan. His subject will be "The Rapture," which is the term given to the going up of the church to meet the Lord Jesus Christ in the air when He comes the second time to reign as King of kings on the earth. The doctor was very well received in Vancouver. It is expected that the King's Hall will be crowded out on Friday evening, when the meeting will commence at 8 o'clock.

TREE AVENUES PLANNED
That main automobile highways of Australia be lined with rows of beautiful trees is the plan of the Australian Forest League. The first step has been taken by the New South Wales branch of the organization, which has just started a movement for making the road between Sydney and Canberra, the new Australian capital, an avenue of trees. President R. H. Cambridge says that the trees selected for the drive, which is more than thirty miles long, will be natives of the district, and that trees of one species should be planted continuously for distances of from one-quarter of a mile to one mile. It is hoped that the next step will be the connecting of Canberra and Melbourne by a similar avenue. All the municipal, automobile, good roads and other organizations are being interested in the plan.

Today Is Last on Which Ratepayers May Avoid Penalty

TODAY is the last on which ratepayers may make payment of their taxes without falling under the penalty charge. City Treasurer Edwin C. Smith announced yesterday. To accommodate last-minute payers, the city treasury department will be kept open until 9 o'clock tonight to receive collections. At 10 o'clock this morning the city will open its tax sale of property. The number of parcels being placed on the market is much lower than last year.

TWO DIVORCES GRANTED HERE

Mr. Justice Morrison Gives Decrees Absolute to Petitioners in Supreme Court Actions

Two divorces were granted to petitioners in the Supreme Court here yesterday by Mr. Justice Morrison, both actions being uncontested.

Violet Eileen Siciliano secured a decree absolute of divorce from Rocco Siciliano. The couple were married on July 2, 1921, at Victoria. Mr. T. M. Miller appeared as counsel for the petitioner.

A decree absolute of divorce was granted to James Francis Edward Morrison from Ellen Ruth Morrison. They were married on December 1, 1915, at Epworth, England, and have one child. Custody of the child was granted to the mother. Counsel for the petitioner was Mr. Harold A. Beckwith.

BUREAU EXPECTS RECORD SEASON

Many People Will Come to Victoria to Spend Winter, Publicity Officials Say

Victoria will this year experience a record influx of visitors desiring to spend the winter here, according to present indications as interpreted by the Publicity Bureau.

The Bureau is now preparing its winter season campaign. Inquiries as to the availability of houses and apartments to rent, the cost of living here, etc., are being received from people in Eastern Canada and the eastern United States. Other requests for information are coming in from prosperous Prairie farmers and business men.

More than eighty per cent of the letters of inquiry come from people who state that they have already visited the city as tourists. One such letter, received yesterday, came from a man in Honolulu, Mr. P. H. Bugnet.

The winter tourist season last year was the best on record. The Florida cyclones and the California floods were factors contributing to this. But, according to present indications, the coming winter will be an even more successful season, Publicity Bureau officials say.

The summer tourist season is not yet ended, judging from the report of Mr. Frank Gielma on the cars he had passed on the road between Duncan and Nanaimo several days ago. One-quarter of the automobiles bore license plates from points outside the province, he said.

Trophy Is Donated For International Fox and Fur Show

Another trophy has been added to the list of cups for the coming International Fox and Fur Show, which will be held in the Weller Building on October 26, 27 and 28, by the Winnipeg Fur Auction Sales Company. This cup will go to the owner of the best fox in the show, male or female.

Sixty-two entries have been received to date, with four from Dr. Winchester, Nampa, Idaho, among the latest.

Mr. D. M. McDonald, show superintendent, W. Miller Higgs, assistant show superintendent, and Rev. Montague Bruce, will attend the fur auction sales at Tacoma on October 11 as guests of the Winnipeg Fur Auction Sales Company.

PROVINCE PREPARES TO EXHIBIT AT THE TORONTO FAIR

Active preparations are being made by the Department of Agriculture of the province for a very comprehensive exhibit of products in various lines of agriculture at the Winter Fair in Toronto, which will be held in November. The collection has been made by Mr. C. Lemax, and a valuable and instructive collection has been made and will be mounted for display in the East.

Dr. D. Warnock, Minister of Agriculture, will have charge of the exhibit that is to be made. It is the intention to have the province represented at this famous eastern Winter Fair, which is one of the best on the continent, by about three carloads of purebred stock.

MILAN TO HAVE SUBWAYS

Milan cannot afford to present a subway system like that in New York, Paris or London, but it may construct a smaller one to handle its constantly-growing traffic. This was the gist of the report of a commission appointed by city officials to study the question. In the past thirteen years Milan's population has grown from 600,000 to 900,000, and this has caused such a serious congestion of traffic in the heart of the city that an extensive subway plan was proposed. The commission has recommended that the four principal street car lines that converge in the Piazza Del Duomo, the city's centre, be routed to that piazza through two tunnels, constructed for the purpose. These two tunnels will have a total length of more than three miles. The plan will probably be adopted.

TWO GIRLS IN ONE FAMILY ARE PLACED

Two Prize Essays for Description of Visit to Willows Exhibition. Recently Announced.

Winners of the essay competition promoted by the British Columbia Agricultural Association for the best stories based on a visit to the recent exhibition at the Willows Park are announced as follows:

1. Grace E. C. Higham; 2. Lillian C. Higham, both of 2870 Dysart Road.

The prize essays are as follows:

First Prize Essay on the Provincial Exhibition, Victoria:

The most striking thing I think about our Provincial Exhibition, is the wide and splendid variety of things to be seen in them. As one wanders through building after building, filled with evidences of the fine resources of the province, it seems as if there could not possibly be anything left out.

A visit to the Exhibition is a wonderful opportunity, for us to see what our province possesses, and never fails to make us prouder of the little corner of the world. We get such a very matter-of-course outlook on the "doings" of the province, that it is only a thing which as this which we wake up, and make us realize how good those "doings" are, and what great prospects there are for British Columbia.

The exhibits were so interesting that one could hardly tell what to look at first. In the Manufacturers' Building, the many displays of local stores, some of them very beautifully arranged, were very interesting and varied. How gay the big buildings were with their flags and banners and colored lights, especially where music was playing!

GOOD MUSIC

I heard many people comment on the high class of music with which the public was entertained in the Main Building, and on the great improvement on the methods of other years in having the four instruments running simultaneously to produce such wonderful volume and clearness of sound.

There must have been a great deal of time spent in preparing for the affair in every department, but, among the many other things, the exhibit of women's work seemed to me to have had the largest amount of patience and care spent on it—the embroidery, sewing, knitting and delicious-looking cookery that made one's mouth water.

There was a record livestock display this year, even the extra large and beautiful birds shown. I always enjoy watching the funny antics of the little kids and lambs, as well as any others, I think. Then, too, the rabbits are very pretty, and there was a large showing of them. There were so many exhibits among the poultry that it almost defied one to enter, just as if the birds were trying to disfigure themselves in the eyes of would-be admirers, which would have been a shame, as there were so many fine birds shown.

I was disappointed at the omission of the forestry display this year, for the forests are one of the greatest assets of the province. This interesting exhibit attracts a great deal of attention usually, for it shows how many surprising and wonderful things may be done with wood—even to the making of silk jumpers!

Each year the automobile display shows that remarkable strides are being taken in the various directions in the car world, all the time. It was very pleasing to see that the large building was full to capacity; great strides over the display a few years ago, when it was not more than half filled.

The rodeo and the race track drew many people to the fair grounds, and offered a pleasing variety in the programme of events.

THE AMUSEMENTS

Then, not to be forgotten, are the amusements—the principal attraction to the smaller children, who go home with their minds in a dizziness of merry-go-rounds, swings, ice cream, popcorn, toys, whistles, and "all the fun of the fair." The addition of the Ferris wheel was a great improvement, and the midway looked very attractive, especially at night, when it was all illuminated.

No wonder the exhibition is a red-letter day for all the "small fry".

It speaks very well for our fair, when a man who knows so much about exhibitions as Mr. G. B. Smith, a correspondent of several magazines interested in exhibitions, says: "At the outset I would say that, pro rata, your fair ranks in marks and percentage as high as any other in Canada." He also praised the livestock and other departments very highly.

This popular exhibition is visited by many people, giving a pleasant time to them all, and everyone turns homeward with many happy memories and useful information, which they may "unearth" later with both pleasure and profit.

SECOND

Second Prize Essay on Provincial Exhibition, Victoria:

To people of Victoria, the Provincial Exhibition is one of the greatest days of the year, and to the children a visit to it makes an exciting finish to the school holidays.

When we once get there we hardly know which building to go to first, because there are so many different ones and all so attractive.

After looking at all the interesting exhibits in the Manufacturers' Building, we came away with a much clearer idea of how a large number of industries and manufactures are carried on in British Columbia, than before we saw it. Some of them are especially interesting, such as a large butter exhibit, which took the form of a carving in butter, of the Fathers of Confederation, the first Confederation Prime Minister, King George V, and a United Empire Loyalist's cabin scene.

The next building we enter is the Women's Building. The beautifully fine sewing, embroidery and crocheting makes us wish we could do such fine work. Besides this, it reminds us of the time, care and patience required to complete a great many of them.

An outstanding feature in this building was the music, not supplied by a band, as formerly, but by four instruments running together, which produced so large a volume of sound that we could hear it very plainly out in the grounds. The school exhibit of drawings, paintings and other work, is popular. There are so many entries, and so many good ones that, in some cases, I would find it hard to choose between them.

The horse exhibit calls our attention, too, more so than in other years, as there is a much larger showing than usual.

STOCK SHOWING

There was a large showing of cattle. There were not so much interest to me as to a person who knows more about them, though I might admire them in some respects.

The sheep entries, which were very numerous, occupied the next building. I was looking through, and I was certainly a lordly air with which some of the rams carried themselves, so proud they seemed of their great horns. The lambs looked comical with their dark little faces.

The large sows with their litter were a sight, though for my part I was more interested in the baby pigs, they looked so comical.

The number of goats shown is much larger than the last few years; the kids were subject to a lot of petting from most of us.

THE POULTRY

I am quite certain I never saw so many chickens before as when I was looking through the Poultry Building. Besides so many colors, sizes and breeds, there were so many tones of voices belonging to them, that I am afraid they ought to be blamed for us leaving more hurriedly than we might have done otherwise.

The Rabbit Building is also interesting, seeing all the different breeds, which we don't get an opportunity to do elsewhere. If I felt their coats, I found a great difference in some of them, some softer than others, others coarser. I have often read and heard what nice pets rabbits make, also nestlets, but I am very sure I would not like my pet killed for the sake of a necktie.

THE BELOVED CAR

While we were looking through the automobile display, the largest during the past few years, we discussed the makes of cars we would like to have, but the make we had was another thing altogether.

Last, but not least, the amusements, which I think are about the most attractive feature of the exhibition, to the children at least. The merry-go-round, glider, Ferris wheel and "whip" are an enticement to spend your money. The ray-looking booths have the same effect on your purse.

The rodeo is an entirely new form of amusement and drew large crowds during the evenings of the exhibition week. The races, also, brought quite a crowd on to the grandstand.

Until we went to the Provincial Exhibition we never thought so many industries were carried on, or even could be carried on, in British Columbia.

It is very nice, indeed, to have other people from outside British Columbia comment on our large fair as ranking as highly as any others in Canada. One person who is of that opinion, and is competent to judge, is Mr. George B. Smith, representative of The Billboard, the world's best-known exhibition magazine, and correspondent of several Old Country journals, all interested in fairs.

CARRIES UNCASHED CHEQUE 50 YEARS

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Returning to his native town of Middlebrough, Yorkshire, for the first time since he went to Australia fifty years ago, Bennett H. Alton, of Melbourne, brought the still uncashed cheque for twenty pounds given him by his father when he left home as a youth of nineteen.

Looking for his old school, he found Middlebrough's principal cafe on the site, and the playing field occupied by the Middlebrough Exchange.

The owner of a Melbourne building, known as "Alton's Corner," he is now a wealthy man. Taking the cheque to the local branch of the National Provincial Bank, he was shown one there in a frame three years older than his.

Men's Club Social

The Men's Club of the Oak Bay United Church will hold a social evening on Tuesday at 8 o'clock. In addition to the musical programme other interesting items have been arranged. The ladies of the church will be the guests of the evening.

Women's Canadian Club

The annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club will be held at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday, October 4, at 2 o'clock. Miss Agnew will present her report of the recent meeting of the Association of Canadian Clubs held in Ottawa, and the annual reports of the club and the election of officers will be on the agenda.

RESULT PROVED DISAPPOINTING

Arable Land North of Campbell River Found by Survey to Be Less Than Estimated

Some time ago a survey of the district north of Campbell River was announced by the Land Department of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway. This was to be conducted for the purpose of ascertaining what possibilities existed for colonization efforts, when the time came for a suggested extension of the railway northward from Courtenay, thirty miles from Campbell River.

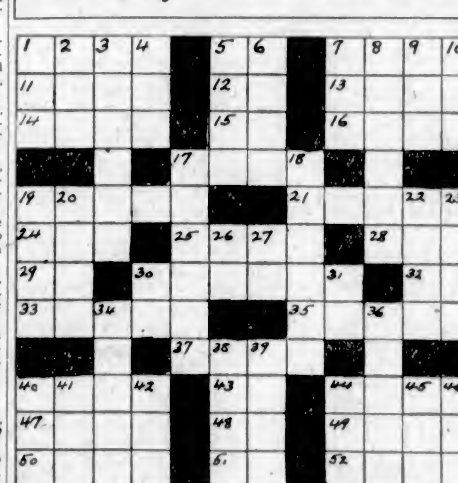

This survey has been made, and "The Colonist" is informed from a responsible source that the results were disappointing, in that the principal claim for 100,000 acres of arable land in the district was not established by the surveyors, nor anything like that amount in reasonably close proximity to any projected rail extension.

Apart from logging operations it was found that immediate industrial possibilities were limited, and that some extensive mining or similar development would be necessary to justify heavy expenditure, such as would be involved in railway construction.

GARDEN CITY INSTITUTE

The Garden City Women's Institute will hold a 500 drive this evening at 8 o'clock in the Marigold Hall.

SUNDAY ROTARY DAY AT SOLARIUM

Clubmen to Visit Crippled Children's Hospital at Mill Bay—Mr. Hughes Joins Rotary Rank

"Rotary Day" will be observed at the Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children at Mill Bay next Sunday, Mr. James H. Fletcher, president of the Victoria Rotary Club, intimated at yesterday's Rotary Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

Dr. Cyril Wace, honorary medical superintendent of the Solarium, has invited the Rotarians to visit the Mill Bay Hospital.

The clubmen will meet on Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Bank of Montreal, Douglas and Yates Street, and then proceed to the Solarium.

"You will see for yourselves the good work that is being done at the Solarium," said President Fletcher. "If we gave our efforts to this cause alone, we would be more than justifying our existence."

President Fletcher stated that the Rotary Club had made a wise choice by putting Rotarian J. Lyle Dunlop on the Solarium Board, for he has given freely of his time and means in the work.

Mr. W. H. Hughes, of the Island Window & Carpet Cleaning Co., was elected into the Rotary ranks by the vote of the membership.

The Rotarians thanked Rotarian Thomas Walker for the display of beautiful dahlias blooms at the luncheon. The flowers were grown by Mr. C. Garrahy, and the stock is now owned by Mr. Jack Alder.

BUYS AN ISLAND FOR ANIMALS

BOURNEMOUTH, Eng. Sept. 29.—Bournemouth Island, in Poole Harbor, has been purchased by Mrs. Robert Christie, of Bournemouth, for use as a refuge for persecuted animals. When she bought the island from Sir Arthur Wheeler for $625,000, she insisted that a sanctuary, which one of the tenants on the island had in a cage, should at once be freed. She said she would not permit any birds to be caged nor any animals or birds to be killed on the island as long as she held possession.

Mrs. Christie, though leading a retired life on her estate in Somerset, is keenly interested in the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and is one of the leading members of the Bournemouth branch.

EXPERIMENT MADE TEACHING FRENCH

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—An educational experiment now being organized has as its object the teaching of small children to speak French. Dr. A. B. Chandler, lecturer in pediatrics at McGill University, and Dr. Guy Johnson, also of the McGill medical faculty, are sponsors of the movement, believing that if children are to speak French fluently they must be taught at an early age.

The enrolment of the special class will be limited to ten children between the ages of four and one-half and six years. This will be in the nature of a French kindergarten, with an atmosphere entirely French. The tots will be taught French games and songs and learn French phonetics, under the instruction of a French kindergarten teacher. There will be no formal instruction and nursery school methods will be followed.

WOMEN WOULD AVOID ERRORS RECEIVING HOME WELCOMES WOMEN

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—"Athletics for athletics' sake." The slogan of the fans—upholds a narrow point of view in the opinion of Miss Jesse Herriott, the new physical director of women at McGill University. "The educative programme of physical education should influence the entire life of the girl, not solely benefit the physical side."

"We are just beginning women's work in athletics and while we are anxious to adopt from the men the desirable qualities of their athletic programme, we are anxious not to fall into the errors of the men's work, notably professionalism," she said.

Unmarried mothers are sheltered before and after their confinement. Women leaving prison are often encouraged to stay at the home, taking only work by the day at first, until they have got on their feet and are off to a fresh start. Such cases necessarily involve discreet employment work.

Kitchen Freedom without neglect

AN afternoon off used to mean a hurriedly prepared, makeshift evening meal for the family.

The owner of a Beach Range, equipped with the Robertshaw Automatic-Cook (oven heat control), returns home to find her meal perfectly cooked and ready to serve.

You simply set the dial—the heat control does the rest. Anyone can learn to use it in a few minutes. These and its other fine features make the Beach the outstanding gas range. Ask a Beach dealer to explain them.

Eat More Toast!

Healthful, Appetizing

Warm-over dishes are made newly interesting when served with hot, brown toast. Doubly nourishing, too. Sandwiches of all kinds are delicious on toast. Try ham or cheese or lettuce and mayonnaise.

TRY HOT BUTTERED TOAST WITH—

- Cinnamon and Sugar
- Cream Cheese and Currant Jam
- Peanut Butter and Piccalilli
- Grated Cheese and Pimento
- Preserved Figs and Pecans
- Chopped Olives and Mayonnaise

Then, too, toast as a garnish rounds out various courses perfectly. Serve it with creamed dishes and as croutons in soup.

It is surprising the number of ways in which toast can add to the variety of the family menu.

Some Harvest Festival Plans
Very Rev. Dean Quinlan will preach the Harvest Thanksgiving sermon tonight at St. Alban's Church, Oaklands (Belmont and Ryan Streets). During the day a band of decorators under the leadership of Mrs. J. Baron, president of the Ladies' Guild, will be busy preparing for the church for the service which will take place at 8 o'clock. The festival will be kept up over Sunday.

The Sidney United Church will have its Harvest Festival on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The church is being decorated for the occasion, and special harvest music is to be rendered by the combined choir of South Saanich and Sidney. The preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. R. W. Lee, of Fairfield Church, Victoria.

On Monday evening the annual Harvest Home social will be held in the church when a varied concert programme will be rendered and the harvest message delivered by the Rev. H. J. Armitage, of Victoria. After the concert, refreshments will be served in the basement, and a social time enjoyed, to which all friends of the church are cordially invited.

The Harvest Festival services will be held on Sunday evening, October 2, at St. Andrew's Church, Sidney. After the church, the Rev. A. J. S. Bastin will conduct the services.

LADY JANE GREY MARRIED AT ABBEY

Descendant of Ill-Fated Queen
Weds Rev. Peveril H.
Turnbull

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Scenes reminiscent of the sixteenth century were enacted in Westminster Abbey today when the descendant of one of England's most romantic queens, Lady Jane Grey, was married in the chapel of Henry the Seventh, to Rev. Peveril Haynes Turnbull, rector of Saint Cross with at Homersfield.

The bride wore a gown of white velvet, copied from a portrait of her ill-fated ancestor who was beheaded in London, February 12, 1554, with her husband, on charges of treason after having been proclaimed Queen in July, 1553. The chapel was dimly lighted by tall candles similar to those used in the period of England's "Ten Day" queen, who was a great-granddaughter of Henry the Seventh.

The bride's dress had a closely-fitting bodice and a full skirt flowing out from the hips. A shawl of point lace served as her veil and her train was fashioned into a cap and arranged over a slender wreath of orange blossoms. A bright splash of color came from the scarlet of the robes of the Bishop of London, who performed the ceremony, and the choristers' robes lit up the grey chapel, which was decorated with bunches of Michaelmas daisies to match the bride's bouquet.

Women's Clubs And Societies

Mission Circle Meets
The Women's Mission Circle of Emmanuel Baptist Church, held a meeting last Tuesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Cogwell, in the chair. Mrs. Ferguson gave a paper on "The Creed and Spread of Islam." Plans were made for the Christmas comfort box to be sent to a Home Mission pastor. Mrs. King invited the women to her home for a social afternoon, when the gifts could be presented, the date to be arranged later. The circle decided to take up the reading contest next year. Mrs. Daniels offered her home for a silver tea to be given on October 14, from 3 to 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The offer was unanimously accepted and Mrs. Daniels thanked. Committees were appointed to make arrangements, the proceeds of the silver tea to be devoted to the life membership fund.

Jubilee Hospital W.A.
The first monthly meeting of the season of the Jubilee Hospital W.A. was held on Wednesday, in the Nurses' Home, the president, Mrs. Rhodes, in the chair. Bills to the amount of $195 were ordered paid. Mrs. Hermann Robertson, membership convener, reported having received $121, a donation being received of $100 from Mrs. M. B. Smith. Mention was made of acknowledgment of use of cars during the Hospital convention.

Mothers' Union
The diocesan branch of the Mothers' Union will meet for the first time this season on Tuesday, October 4, at 3 p.m., in the Guild Room of the Memorial Hall. Madame Sanderson-Mongin will be the speaker. Her subject will be "Mothers of France."

Queen of Island Lodge
The Queen of the Island L.O.B.A. No. 209, will hold a card party in aid of the Protestant True Blue Orange Home for Children today at 1230 Government Street, and one at the home of Mrs. Buckley, Fernwood Road, on October 14.

Equilateral Card Party
The Equilateral sub-division of the Catholic Women's League is holding a card party at the home of Mrs. McDonald, 631 Langford Street, on Wednesday, October 5, at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served and prizes given.

Women's Institutes

LUXTON
In place of the regular monthly meeting of the Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute on Tuesday next, October 4, the members will visit the Solarium at Cobble Hill, starting at 1 o'clock.

METCHOSIN
The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in Wednesday next, October 5, in the hall, at 2:30 o'clock. The chief business will be the final arrangements for the pioneer gathering to be held in November. During the afternoon Mrs. Frank Campbell will speak on new legislation relating to women and children. Mrs. P. A. Pearce will be in charge for tea.

Weddings

SMITH-REDDING
CUMBERLAND, Sept. 28.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at Holy Trinity Anglican Church yesterday morning when Miss Katherine Elizabeth Redding, of Victoria, as united in marriage to Mr. James Houghton Smith, of Sandwick, Rev. J. O. Robathan, vicar of Holy Trinity, officiating. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. John Blackburn, of Sandwick, and attended by her sister, Mrs. Harold E. Murray, of Toronto Road, Cumberland. Mr. Murray supported the groom.

FORESTERS TO HOLD DANCE THIS EVENING

Proceeds to be Divided Equally Between Soldiers and Disabled Member

A big frolic to be held this evening at the A.O.F. Hall, Cormorant street, by the Order of Foresters, will be of financial assistance to the soldiers and to a member of the Order, who is ill and in need of special medical treatment for his blindness. Dancing and a specially-arranged programme of music will continue from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. Many units have been prepared by the committee, including tombola and other events. A strong committee has been appointed to push the sale through to an outstanding success.

Charge Customers, Kindly Note

All purchases made today, September 30, will be charged to next month's account, payable in November.

The House of Rogues

By CHRISTOPHER B. BOOTH

SYNOPSIS

Philip Raymond, "The Black Fox," kind of counterfeiter, has served fifteen years in prison for counterfeiting. Three days prior to his release he and his cell-mate, Frank Padon, "Three-Fingered Frank," agree to join forces. Padon's release is on the morrow.

John Strawn, a wealthy, middle-aged man, has purchased "The House of Rogues," which The Black Fox built with the proceeds of crime. Among his guests are Mrs. Westbury Eastman, and her daughter Polly, a pretty, charming girl, whom Strawn has made up his mind to marry. Vera Kingslake, a fascinating widow of thirty, Paul Grimshaw, Strawn's nephew, and Bob Dolliver, Strawn's secretary, complete the party.

From a chance in the back of the bookcase, in the room known as "The House of Rogues," Strawn finds the evidence for fifty-dollar notes, and the bank paper for making them. He locks them up in his own desk for safety.

Vera Kingslake, scheming to get Strawn for herself, tells him that if he can find out the fact that his uncle does not marry, he will be the sole heir. She tells him that she can further the love affair between Dolliver and Polly, he will be the winner.

Strawn overhears Paul's later conversation with Dolliver, and threatens to disclose his nephew's secret.

Kicked out without a dollar! Under his breath Paul curses Strawn, for making the suggestion that had got him into this fix.

A mystery is created by Polly seeing a light and hearing sounds in the book-lined room, but on opening the door the room is empty. Later the mystery deepens by the finding on the thickly coated dust of the table the imprint of the hand of a three-fingered man.

Suspicion falls on Jagger, Strawn's butler, as having some connection with the three-fingered man.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE CROSS-PULL

Vera Kingslake had got out of her dinner gown, slipping into one of the newest creations, and was starting to take down her hair when she heard Polly leaving her mother's room across the hallway. She paused, running through her mind for any sort of an excuse to drop in on Polly, the object of which was that bit of "missionary work" intended to bud and flower a romance between Polly and Bob Dolliver. She was certain that the affair needed only the proper sort of encouragement.

When deeply meditative, Mrs. Kingslake often smoked a cigarette; she reached for the gold case, monogrammed in chip rubies, and then discovered that there were no matches. An excuse made to order! Smiling a little, she got up from the dressing table and stepped out into the hall; an instant later she was rapping at the door of Polly's room.

"Come on in, Momsey," called Polly, thinking that her mother wished to add something to their subject of discussion—possible marriage to John Strawn. However, she was not particularly surprised when it turned out to be Vera Kingslake; somehow, one wasn't greatly surprised at anything Mrs. Kingslake did. She was one of those unexpected persons, Vera.

"Sorry to break in on you, Polly darling, but I'm just dying for a good-night smoke, and I discovered that there are no matches in my room. Can you give me a light?"

"I think you'll find a match over there," said Polly, waving her hand toward the wall. Vera Kingslake sauntered across the room and lighted her cigarette. "Pardon me, dear, I didn't think to offer you one."

"Thanks, no; I've never taken up smoking."

"No? How absurdly old-fashioned you are!" Vera dropped to the chaise-lounge, inhaled deeply and expelled twin streams of smoke through her nose. "I find it is soothing—and a sedative is almost a necessity after what we've gone through tonight."

Polly laughed.

"You seemed rather to enjoy it."

"I wonder if the three-fingered man will come back?" mused Mrs. Kingslake. "It's all very queer, isn't it? I've been thinking about it and wondering if, after all, there could have been someone in that room when you thought you heard them—or rather, him."

"I'm sure that I couldn't have been mistaken," Polly said positively. "A sound might have been imagined, especially since my nerves were keyed up, but that light through the keyhole—"

"That might be explained, too," broke in Vera Kingslake. "I've just thought of something that might explain it. There's a high road behind the house and I should think that it's about on the level with the windows. Automobile headlights, I think, would be powerful enough—"

"To flood through the window and shine through the keyhole," Polly finished quickly, but then she shook her head. "No, I can't believe that explains it; I felt the presence of someone in that room."

"That could easily be your imagination, but—oh, what's the use? There's one thing we do know; there is a three-fingered man and he wants the counterfeiting plates. Jagger was certainly lying."

"I don't believe that I want to talk about it any more; it isn't very pleasant even to think of a strange man, probably a criminal, roaming about the place. The house is depressing within itself."

Vera Kingslake puckered her lips and blew a smoke-ring into the air as she considered the most natural way to veer conversation into the desired channel. There seemed no course except to take the plunge.

"Polly," she said with an abruptness softened by the gentleness of her tone, "you're liable to think me a meddling woman who would do better minding her own business, but—I can't help noticing that John Strawn has taken a great fancy to you."

Polly, startled, turned and stared. "And it makes me want to say some things to you because—because I married very young a man a great deal older than myself. May I?"

Consent seemed the only polite thing and Polly, considerably flustered, nodded acquiescence.

"It's the natural thing," went on Vera Kingslake. "For a girl to feel flattered by the attention of a wealthy man, for money is a great lure. I was just your age, dear, when I married Henry Kingslake. I'd always been frightfully poor and I thought wealth spelled happiness, but I was wrong. When a man passes forty he is set in his ways and selfish. Even worse, an old man is always jealous of a pretty young wife

"When Henry asked me to marry him I threw over—Oh, you'd never guess! Kermit Saunders! I was very fond of Kermit, but I turned him down because he was poor. He's a wealthy man now, worth three times over what Henry was." She sighed. "Eight years I spent with Henry, eight years of unhappiness, suspicion, until—until it became a nightmare. What did I get out of it? The income from less than a hundred thousand—and I can't touch a cent of the principal."

"I wonder if Kermit Saunders found happiness? He was desperately in love with me—desperately. There's something about Bob Dolliver which reminds me of Kermit. Perhaps, my dear, it's because our situations are such parallels and poor Bob is so obviously in love with you."

Polly flushed and lowered her eyes.

"I don't think so," she murmured; not enough to—

"Nonsense!" Vera Kingslake became warmly emphatic. "He's dead in love with you. Anyone with half an eye can see that. Think it over, Polly dear; consider the future. Take the advice of a woman who's been through the experience and—don't marry John Strawn. I don't want to see you wreck your life, child, as I did mine."

Polly Eastman was greatly impressed since it fitted in with her own mood, but, looking up with a wan, grateful little smile, a sudden understanding dawned upon her. Very Kingslake's voice had been gentle and sad, but her eyes had been in them a calculating gleam and then under the work of her words for a quick intuition told Polly that there lay behind it all a selfish interest and motive.

Why should Vera Kingslake so earnestly desire to thwart a match between she and Strawn? There was obviously but one answer; the woman herself had her eyes turned in the same direction.

"I think that I understand—what you are driving at," Polly said with a chilly edge to her voice. "I think I understand—quite well."

The mask of composure fell from Vera Kingslake's face for a brief instant as a loof of angered disappointment crossed her features and she shot in her black eyes. She knew that she had misplayed her hand; she knew, too, that there was danger that she had hurt her plans a great deal more than she had helped them.

She shrugged her shoulders and continued to play the part of kindly adviser that she had assumed.

"I see, Polly dear," she murmured sweetly, "that you do not understand. Why is it that some people are always suspecting an effort to do them a good turn? That must be a most unhappy state of mind. I shall not press the subject. If it shouldn't turn out happily, I understand that it is easy to free one's self of their mistakes in Paris."

And with a brief, not exactly pleasant laugh, she tossed her cigarette into a tray and moved towards the door.

"The sharp little fox!" she muttered under her breath. "Her wits are quicker than I had supposed. She'll do it; she'll marry him." Her hands clenched and her lips quivered. Vera Kingslake, you see, didn't want John Strawn for his money; she had fallen in love with the man.

Closing the door of Polly's room behind her, she slipped down the hall towards her own. Suddenly she paused, transfixed in a tight-throated terror. Ahead of her someone had emerged from the book-lined room at the head of the stairs. The gold cigarette case fell from her limp fingers and clattered to the floor. The man turned swiftly and a gasp of relief escaped the woman.

"Paul!" she whispered. "How—how you startled me. I thought that you were—the three-fingered man! When I saw you coming out of that room—"

Paul glowered at her through the gloom, remembering that it was her suggestion which had caused him to assay the role of assistant to Cupid and precipitate the trouble with his uncle. Without a word of apology for having frightened her, he grunted an unintelligible something and walked away from her.

DR. TOLMIE WILL ATTEND MEETING

ANNUAL BUSINESS GATHERING OF CONSERVATIVES SET FOR NEXT WEEK

Nominations for Officers Must Be Sent In to the Secretary Today

The leader of the Conservative Party for the Province of B.C., Hon. S. F. Tolmie, M.P., will be present at the annual meeting of the local central organization. It is announced that Dr. Tolmie will attend this meeting even if he is late reaching the National Convention of the party in Winnipeg in consequence.

The annual meeting of the Victoria Conservative Association will be held in the Conservative Rooms, Campbell Building, on October 6, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year, and the transaction of any other business which may come before the meeting.

In accordance with the new constitution nominations for officers duly proposed and seconded by two members of the association, together with an acceptance signed by the nominee, must be placed in the hands of the secretary not later than Friday, September 30, to entitle nominees to have their names placed in nomination.

There will also be elected by ballot at this annual meeting four representatives to the British Columbia Conservative Association, in accordance with the constitution of the British Columbia Conservative Association.

In addition to the address of Dr. Tolmie, there will be speeches by Senators R. F. Green and O. H. Barnard, and the local members of the Legislature for the city. Mr. R. H. Pooley, the House leader of the party, is also invited to be present. The officers of the association will review the year's work at this meeting.

Give some people half a chance and they will take the other half.

CAPT. FONCK PLANS AIR MAIL SERVICE TO EUROPE NEXT SUMMER

CURTIS FIELD, N.Y., Sept. 29.—A commercial air line between this country and Europe, probably terminating at Paris, is projected for next Spring by Captain Rene Fonck, French war ace, who has abandoned his plans for a transatlantic flight this Summer.

Fonck has worked out his plans carefully, he announced, and intends to place six planes in the ocean service, with himself as the pilot of one of them. The first flights next Spring, he said, will be for mail service only. He is now negotiating for mail contracts. After several flights have proved successful, passengers will be carried at nominal rates, which will be raised as the demand for passage increases.

POET RECITES HIS OWN WORKS

Mr. E. J. Pratt Tells Canadian and Rotary Clubs of Romance and Tragedy of Sealer's Life

Bringing the tang of Eastern winds and the thrill of the adventurous life of fishermen into the room, Mr. E. J. Pratt, Canadian poet and lecturer in English at Victoria College, Toronto University, recited a number of his own works yesterday in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel at the joint luncheon of the Canadian and Rotary Clubs.

Mr. Pratt was presented to the gathering by Mr. Kenneth Ferguson, president of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria, who stated that the speaker-guest was a native of Newfoundland, and was one of the most valued contributors to contemporary Canadian literature.

"Too seldom have we the opportunity of entertaining Canadian poets. Mr. Pratt represents all that is best in Canadian manhood and citizenship and we are honored in having him at our guest," said Mr. Ferguson, amid applause.

Mr. Pratt informed his hearers that he was touring Canada under the auspices of the Association of Canadian Clubs, and he was glad to be in British Columbia's Capital City.

The speaker referred to some of the subjects which had inspired his poetical works. He outlined the hazards of the sealing industry in Newfoundland, and in his poem "The Eagle" he brought to life the romance and the tragedy of a sealing expedition of the steamer Eagle. His theme was built on how 200 men hunting seals on the ice pack were suddenly caught in a snowstorm, separated from their ships and lost. The story conveyed by the solemn tolling of bells was figured in a sonnet of Mr. Pratt's telling of the funeral of men brought back from the sea for burial.

Mr. Pratt recited an actual incident which occurred seven years ago in Newfoundland when ninety-three passengers on a mail steamer, which had struck a reef in a terrific storm, were saved from watery graves by Carlo, an heroic Newfoundland dog, which fought tempestuous seas for an hour and one-half to get a rope ashore from the stranded vessel and thereby enabled the ship's company to safely reach land.

The appreciation of the gathering to Mr. Pratt for his dramatic readings was expressed by prolonged applause.

Porter—"What are you doing here?"
Guest—"I beg your pardon. I am a somnambulist."
Porter—"Well, sir, you can't walk about this hotel in your pajamas, no matter what your religion is."

World-Famous Stories

THE WONDERFUL SHAWL

By HONORE DE BALZAC

(Honore de Balzac, 1799-1850, is one of the most famous names in French literature and in world literature. He has to his credit an astonishing number of short stories and novels, including "Pere Goriot," "The Wild Ass's Skin," "Balthazar," etc. His work is usually grouped under the general title of "The Human Comedy." The present episode is taken from the sketch called "Comedies of the Comedians.")

An Englishwoman got out of a hired conveyance and entered the shop. A clerk bearing a strong resemblance to Lord Byron advanced. "Does Madame desire an Indian shawl, or a French one—a high-priced article or one—"

"I will see," said the proprietor. "He used it himself."

"Himself?" she repeated. "She took the shawl, draped it about her, and looked at herself. The proprietor then carried the shawl to the light, handled it, shook it out, made it shine. He played upon that shawl as Liszt played upon a piano."

"Well, Madame?" "Decidedly," she said, after long contemplation. "I prefer a carriage, after all."

"I have a very fine one, Madame," said the proprietor, without hesitation. "I received it from a Russian prince—who left it in payment of a bill. Madame would, I am sure, be delighted with it. It has been used only a few times—and there's not another like it in Paris."

"I will see it," she said. "If Madame will wear the shawl, she will see the effect in the carriage."

Twenty minutes later the proprietor returned. "Go to the Hotel Lawson," he said to one of his clerks. "Here's the card—Mrs. Nowell. Take the bill I am going to give to you, and collect six thousand francs."

"But how did you do it?" said a friend, who had observed all of the proceedings. "Eh, monsieur, I saw I had to do with an eccentric woman. She likes to be noticed—when she saw that everybody we passed looked at that shawl, she said to me: 'You can keep your carriage, monsieur, for I have decided to take the shawl after all.'"

"While my clerk was showing her the shawls, I examined her carefully. She was looking askance to see what idea everyone might have of her. Her mind was more on that than on the shawls."

"These Englishwomen have a peculiar distaste—for I can't call it taste. They don't know what they want, and some chance circumstance will decide them to take a thing they have been haggling over, rather than any real determination of their own."

"I recognized this woman as one bored with husband and children, perhaps, and regretfully virtuous, seeking some emotions of some kind—always posing as a weeping willow."

The proprietor had invented the Selim shawl—which is to say, a shawl impossible to see, yet sold all the time. It was kept in a plain cedar box, lined with satin. The shawl was worth five or six hundred francs—a shawl, it was told, sent by the Sultan Selim to the Emperor Napoleon. This shawl was the shop's Imperial Guard—it was brought on the field whenever the cause was nearly lost.

"Step around to the cabinet-maker's," said the wife of the proprietor to a blond clerk, "and order another cedar box."

The proprietor stood musing awhile, then said to his friend: "We must hunt among our shawls for another that can play the part of the Selim shawl."

S. W. AFRICA'S TRADE INCREASING

In 1926 imports into the mandated territory of Southwest Africa were valued at £2,507,625 against £2,189,831 in 1925, and exports £3,292,986 against £2,826,222, writes Trade Commissioner G. R. Stevens, Cape-town, in the forthcoming issue of The Commercial Intelligence Journal. Among foodstuffs the principal imports are flour, which accounts for one-seventh of the whole; coffee, ams and jellies, condensed milk, sugar and confectionery. In all these items South Africa is the predominant supplier, enjoying three-quarters of the total trade. Among the imports of textiles, cotton piece goods and ready-made clothing, together with other haberdashery items, compose three-quarters of the total imports. The majority of the imports reach Southwest Africa through South Africa, and their origin is undeclared. In the metal goods, machinery and vehicles classes, the imports of agricultural implements are modest. A considerable proportion of the entire demand under this head consists of mining machinery. Germany enjoys a marked advantage in this territory, both because of the preponderance of German population and because of the steamship services between Germany and Southwest African ports. Bathing costumes for smart women this year include a bathing tunic and knickers, with a pleated skirt for beach wear, and a wide cape longer than most of the coats in ordinary use.

MOSCOW EXPELS MORE MEMBERS

MOSCOW, Sept. 29.—Fourteen Communists, including many workers, were expelled from the ranks of the Communist party by the Presidium, or Moscow Controlling Commission, today. They were charged with carrying on insidious oppositionist propaganda, maintaining a secret printing plant, circulating secret party documents in bulk, holding conspiratory conferences and working hand-in-glove with a number of intellectual bourgeois violently opposed to the Central Communist Committee. The expulsions are regarded as indicating a new resolution by the Central Committee to prosecute vigorously all underground party activities. Special prayers for the use of the Navy were introduced into the Prayer Book in 1661, but there have never been any special prayers for the Prayer Book for use at Arm services.

AGENT-GENERAL MAY SPEAK

Fish and Game Committee at Duncan Brings Up Question of Depletion of Fraser Salmon Fisheries

SUM SECURED FOR PLAYGROUND

DUNCAN, Sept. 29.—At the meeting of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce, held last evening, Mr. P. A. Pauline, Agent-General in London, acknowledged a request that he should visit the district and attend a luncheon as the guest of the Chamber, and promised to do so if at all possible.

FRASER RIVER FISHERIES
The fish and game committee brought forward the matter of the depletion of the salmon fishing on the Fraser River as revealed in the recent Babcock report. The Chamber will ask the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to urge upon the Dominion Government the necessity for taking immediate steps to save the industry from absolute extinction. Other island boards and the boards of trade of Vancouver and New Westminster will be asked to co-operate in urging action.

A complaint from a Crofton resident that illegal netting was taking place in prohibited areas there, was handed over to the fish and game committee to deal with. Certain fisheries officials came in for severe criticism, and a suggestion put forward that the dismissal of a certain official be asked for found some support, but was not pressed to a vote.

An interesting report on the recent convention of the Canadian Boards of Trade at Vancouver was submitted by Messrs. W. T. McCuish, J. A. Kyle and S. R. Kirkham.

CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUND
The Confederation Celebration Committee notified the Chamber that a balance of $184 would be handed over to a joint committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Agricultural Society as the nucleus of a fund to provide a children's playground in Duncan. Messrs. McCuish and Kirkham were appointed to represent the Chamber on this committee.

Mrs. Hastings Dies

EAST SOOKE, Sept. 29.—Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. M. A. Caffery, one of East Sooke's oldest inhabitants, at the death of her eldest daughter, Mrs. A. Hastings, on Tuesday. She had been in poor health for many years. She is survived by her husband, and one daughter, Ethel, aged thirteen years. The funeral will take place tomorrow at St. Mary's Church, Metchosa, at 2:30 p.m.

METCHOSA, Sept. 29.—Divine service will be held at St. Mary's Church at 11 o'clock on Sunday.

Victoria Man Gets Contract to Build Duncan Sidewalks

DUNCAN, Sept. 29.—The Council has awarded the contract for about a mile and a half of concrete sidewalks to Mr. T. F. Alexander, Victoria, at a total cost of $10,820.80. The cost estimated by the city, including surveying, overseeing and advertising, was $12,233. The other tenders were: McDonald Construction Co., Ltd., Victoria, $11,025.93; Mr. D. O'Hara, Vancouver, $23,613.13.

The tender is accepted conditionally upon the city not being prevented by petition of property owners from carrying out any of the proposed works which are being done under local improvement.

Alexander is one of the firm of Messrs. Heatherbell & Alexander, who put in five sections of concrete sidewalks here three years ago. The details of the tenders follow, showing, in order, the location of the various sections, the city's estimate, and the tenders respectively of Mr. Alexander, the McDonald Company and Mr. O'Hara.

Trunk Road, westerly section, $3,000; $2,714, $5,595.10, $2,804; Trunk Road, easterly section, $1,525, $1,336.65, $2,798.35, $1,454.40; Festubert Street, $950, $907.85, $1,661.81; $2,145; Queen's Road and Ypres Street, $1,640, $1,413.35, $2,892.66, $1,436.90; Reinfers Road, $1,768, $1,304.97, $3,654.30, $1,425.80; Canada Avenue, $2,290, $2,263.92, $4,131.50, $1,797.75; Holmes Street, $1,250, $1,083.58, $2,887.56, $1,089.50. WAR MEMORIAL PARK TRUSTEES AT SIDNEY MEET

SIDNEY, Sept. 29.—A meeting of the War Memorial Park Trustees was held on Tuesday evening in the office of Mr. S. Roberts, Beacon Avenue. Mr. C. E. Jeffery was elected chairman and Mr. W. H. Dawes, honorary secretary-treasurer. A discussion took place on the Fall programme and the chair was entrusted to appoint a subcommittee with power to carry out the necessary work of preparing the grounds for Fall seeding. A vote of thanks was passed to the Department of Public Works and the general foreman, Major P. Campbell, for the work that has been done to the road ditch in front of the park grounds. A ten-inch tile pipe has been placed and the ditch filled in. This will be of great assistance in parking cars during the games, etc., removing in a very great measure the danger of accidents.

The regular monthly meeting of the North Saanich Branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., will be held in the club rooms, Matthews' Hall, on Tuesday night, at 8 p.m.

Athletic Club To Meet

COLWOOD, Sept. 29.—The Colwood Athletic Club will meet tomorrow at 7:30 o'clock in the Colwood Hall. Mr. R. W. Robinson, instructor of the club, will be pleased to welcome new members.

FOUR BEARS ARE KILLED

One Animal Skinned in Order to Prevent Packing of Heavy Carcass Out of Bush Near Cumberland

PELTIS ARE FOUND IN GOOD SHAPE

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 29.—Bear hunting has become a popular pastime in Cumberland this season. Since Sunday last no less than four of the big fellows have been bagged.

Young John Richardson, a nineteen-year-old boy, shot a monster just behind No. 1 Japanese Town, Cumberland. With the help of his father, who was hunting in the vicinity, he skinned the bear right where he dropped him, it being found that to pack over two hundred pounds out was no easy task.

On coming in to town, the bear, on measurement, was found to be six feet from tip to tip. J. Robertson, telegraph operator here, was also successful in bagging a small black bear, as also was Sam Williams. Tuesday morning another Cumberland youth, Ben Horbury, managed to bag a fine sized one at Puntledge Lake. Considering the time of the year the skins were found to be in really good shape.

QUALICUM BOARD BANQUETS MR. HILL

Late President Is Recognized by Colleagues for Activity in Chair

QUALICUM BEACH, Sept. 29.—The Qualicum Beach Board of Trade made a presentation of a handsome job, suspended from the wall, an exact representation of the Welcome Arch in bronze and engraved, to Mr. A. C. Hill, the retiring president. A banquet was given in his honor at the Community Hall. Messrs. F. M. Jackson, G. H. Aldous, P. H. Buller, George Lane, A. Fraser, E. Sanders, N. H. Gibson, C. R. Mackenzie, E. W. Thwaites, Robert Taylor, P. S. Dudley, A. Dudley, W. C. Herckow, T. G. Morrison, E. Bunting, C. A. White, N. P. Ponsford, W. H. Atkins, H. Dougan and General Money attended. Every member spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Hill's energetic and valuable assistance in all local affairs and in the way he had conducted his business. Mr. Hill responded and thanked the members for their kind words and good wishes. A most convivial evening followed.

UCLUELET-TOFINO ROAD IS OPEN

Connection Between Barkley and Clayoquot Sounds Is Available for Automobiles

LONG BEACH, Sept. 29.—District Engineer Bigwood, accompanied by Mrs. Bigwood, with Road Foreman D. Shaw and Bridge Foreman George Cathcart, made an inspection tour over the season's work on the new Ucluelet-Tofino road during the past week. The road is now all graded and bridges completed so that cars can use it from Ucluelet to Tofino via Long Beach, a distance of twenty-six miles. Some of the road is gravelled now and it is expected that the rest will be finished with a gravel surface in the near future, making this a first-class motor road.

Cumberland Board Discuss Salaries Of Teaching Staff

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 29.—A special meeting of the Cumberland Board of School Trustees was held this week to arrange the salaries of the teaching staff for the ensuing year. The business was not completed and a further meeting will be held next week.

At the first meeting of the reason of the Cumberland United Church, held this week, the reports of the various committees and of the secretary-treasurer were read and adopted. Plans were outlined for the season's activities and the election of officers resulted as follows: Honorary president, Rev. J. R. Hewitt; president, Mr. S. Mounie; vice-presidents, Christian Fellowship, Miss Jessie Brown; missionary, Miss Jessie Baird; literary, Mr. Keith McLean and Miss Christine McKinnon; social, Miss Annie Haywood; secretary-treasurer, Miss Edith Hood; pianist for meetings, Miss Pearl Hunden. The next meeting will be rally night, when a special service will be held, particulars of which will be announced later.

The secretary was instructed to obtain some very necessary books, to be used at the regular meetings. The meeting was enthusiastic, and prospects for the coming season are encouraging.

Harvest Festival

LUXTON, Sept. 29.—On Sunday, October 9, a harvest festival will be held in the Mission Church at Valley at 3 o'clock. Rev. A. deB. Owen will be the preacher. Gifts of fruit and flowers will be gladly received and should be left at the church on Saturday afternoon.

COLWOOD, Sept. 29.—Service will be held in St. John's Church on Sunday, October 2, at 11 a.m., with Matins and Holy Communion.

Air mail service has been established between Batavia, Semarang and Soerabaya, Netherlands East Indies.

For Church Co-operation on Immigration

MR. T. B. MACAULAY
President of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, and member of the United Church of Canada immigration committee, who stresses the fact that there should be more co-operation between religious groups in bringing settlers to Canada.

OUTBREAK TAKES LIFE OF PUPIL

Infantile Paralysis Cases Said to Be Introduced to Cowichan From Infected Area

DUNCAN, Sept. 29.—There was an unusually large attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce held last night.

Mr. W. T. McCuish, president, reported that there had been an outbreak of infantile paralysis at St. Ann's Boys' School, situated three miles out of Duncan, and that one pupil had died the previous night. This was a serious matter, he said. He charged the Provincial Health Department with negligence in connection with the outbreak. He said that boys had been sent to this school from infected areas in the interior, and the outbreak had been brought about through a boy who had come in from a town where forty cases were known to exist. He blamed the department for permitting this occurrence.

He had already lodged a protest with the department, but was not satisfied with the official attitude on the matter. Other private schools had been asked in the name of the Chamber of Commerce to refuse to accept children from infected districts. Mr. McCuish's actions were approved by the meeting.

A strict quarantine is being maintained at the school where the outbreak occurred, and it is hoped to prevent it spreading to other parts of the district.

The following resolution was then adopted and ordered to be wired to the Premier and to the Department of Public Health:

"Whereas there have been four cases of infantile paralysis introduced into this district from an infected area; and whereas the Chamber of Commerce views with alarm the passage of children and youths from infected areas to free areas, and urgently requests that steps be taken to prevent a recurrence of this."

Harvest Home Supper

METCHOSA, Sept. 29.—A meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Prudd to arrange a programme for the harvest home supper, which is to be held on October 11, in aid of church funds. Those who attended were Messrs. F. F. Prudd, F. A. Pearce, and Messrs. E. F. Ash, Prudd and Melsted.

Broomsticks Sent to Erin; Strife Looms

SEATTLE, Sept. 29.—Local shipping men, particularly Irish longshoremen, look for a renewal of hostilities on the Emerald Isle following the arrival at Belfast of the Norton Lilly carrier Steel Scientist, which was cleared from here yesterday afternoon for the United Kingdom and Ireland by George S. Bush & Company with fifty tons of lead and ten tons of broomsticks as part cargo. The munitions of "war" passed through the customary channels without any hump, evidently not being recognized as potential "shillaleahs."

Longshoremen who handled the cargo, however, took a more pessimistic view of the situation, and look for an outbreak that will make the traditional Donnybrook Fair look like a game of ping pong. "Shure, and all things fine clubs are not goin' to the owd Sod for nothin'," said one brawny son of Erin as he watched the slings lift bundles of the polished sticks. "A thrille light, but handled wit care, they'll raise a loomp on anny goosoon's skull."

EUROPE MAY UNITE ON TARIFF POLICY

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 29.—Possible formation of a European economic union to defend the interests of the Old World against the United States is discussed today in an article in The Independent Belge, which speaks for important shipping and industrial interests in Belgium. Reviewing the general economic situation in connection with the French and United States tariff policies, the paper says the United States is opposed to reciprocity as far as tariff questions are concerned, although preparing perhaps to make concessions concerning loans, conversion of debt, and the like. Germany, it continues, considers the United States viewpoint audacious and unjustified; Great Britain backs France and so will all the other powers who, like France, are subjected to the Fordney tariff and "its manifold surprises." Such being the situation, the paper concludes, the question arises whether it is impossible for all the countries interested to unite with a view to constituting a bloc for their mutual defence.
